

SAYS ENO PAPERS WERE PUT IN FIRE
Millionaire's Housekeeper Asserts Law Clerk Ordered Them Burned.

LETTERS FROM KIN THOUGHT DESTROYED

Contestants Believe Missing Notes Would Refute Charge He Disliked His Relatives.

Two wicker baskets, one a small hamper and the other a clothes basket, were introduced yesterday in the Amos E. Enos will contest in the Surrogate's Court. These baskets are considered of great importance by the contestants because of a certain mission they performed a day or two after the death of the millionaire, at 82 Fifth Avenue, in October, 1915.

According to the allegations, supported yesterday by Mrs. Helen Desperina, for several years housekeeper for Mr. Enos, the baskets were filled with letters of importance to the contestants, and were destroyed in the furnace. The command was carried out by Syntie Johnson, the Scandinavian houseman.

She Tried to Save Papers.

One essential, which had not been mentioned in the will, was found in the cellar by Amos R. E. Pinchot, a nephew of Mr. Enos. Among the papers found in the cellar were two or three letters of importance to the contestants, and possibly another will.

Mrs. Desperina identified the baskets. She was in the cellar at the time and objected to burning the papers. The morning after the testator died, Mrs. Desperina said, Mrs. Enos came to the house and sent for her. She stayed in the house two or three days. He took papers from Mr. Enos's desk and from his library.

"I want those papers removed, destroyed," she said, and gave orders to Johnson, said Mrs. Desperina, to destroy the letters. Johnson, however, were destroyed in the furnace.

Mrs. Desperina said that Mrs. Enos's orders were to burn those letters and not to throw them out.

"I don't want you to burn those papers," the housekeeper told the law clerk, but all that was saved, except the hamper that was overlooked, were two diaries kept by Mr. Enos and some business letters.

Through the family letters the contestants hope to refute the suggestion that Mr. Enos had no affection for his kin and here, at last, and therefore made Columbia University the residuary legatee of his $12,000,000 estate.

Another point brought out in the testimony of Mrs. Desperina was that she had made some of the entries in Mr. Enos's diaries at his request. The contestants have used these little books to show that Mr. Enos kept his diary correctly up to within a day or two before his death.

Several witnesses testified that Mr. Enos's grandmother and an uncle had suffered from senile dementia, which, the contestants say, was his condition when he made his will.

PATROLMAN SURPRISES THREE SPEEDY DRAYMEN

Trio Held, Charged with Robbing a Loft.

Three men were working so industriously yesterday removing goods from a loft building at 460 Broome Street to waiting wagons that Patrolman Donley paused to marvel at their speed. After watching them for a few minutes the policeman finally decided that it couldn't be true—that ordinary draymen didn't work that way.

"Let me see your receipt book for these goods," he said to the leader of the three workers.

The man muttered, nodded to a second man and continued the work. Then Donley drew his revolver and took charge of the situation. He called a companion to drive the wagons and men to the MacDougal Street station, where he made an investigation that showed the goods, valued at $5,000, had been stolen from David Lipoff's factory, in the building. The three prisoners then were placed in cells charged with burglary.
